Starbuck Plantation

My Own Dear Mother

T seems a long time since you
and my honoured father
and my ever dear

brothers and sisters started for your new home; but I suppose you have not yet reached your destination
and I think of you
every day and all day long as marching and marching, follow-

I think of you every day and all day long ing the lonely trail through forests

and sometimes
I am tempted to
repine in that my father thought it
best to remove to that far-away settlement. But my grandfather
tells me that the entertaining

of this sentiment
would be unworthy
the daughter of a pioneer; and since it was thought best for me to remain on the island for a season, I must improve my time
to the best advantage; and

Grandfather tells me that this Sentiment is unworthy the daughter of a Pioneer.

this I try to do
with cheerfulness
and Aunt Content is so kind as to say that I am of service to her in our household duties
and in spinning and weaving.

eradventure
my letter
shall be a puzzle
to you, so

I hasten to say that I indite a paragraph or two upon leisure
and whenever anything comes into my mind I desire

you to know I go straightway to my uncle's desk and set it down. I do this
dear mother that you may share in my pleasant thoughts and may know of my daily life; also that my brothers and sisters may in a measure partake

of my enjoyment,

The principal news that I have to tell is that my cousin, Nathaniel Starbuck, Jr. has returned to Boston from his late long voyage to China, and is now hourly looked for here, where there

That you may know of my daily life are divers preparations being made for his welcoming. My grand father walks restlessly up and down with his stout stick peering anxiously up the road way by which our traveler must come. Uncle Nathaniel says with pride, The boy will have many stories to tell." Aunt Content flits about with a smile on her face

and anon with tears in her eyes concocting the dishes of which her son used to be so fond;
while dear old grand mother knits and knits, because, she says "I ha'n't never yet wore any stock

ings but of my make and I must have a supply for him to take on his next voyage; while I am
to have a new blue gown made from my aunt's last web which is the finest and softest piece of flannel on the island

My cousin has come
He is tall and like
with handsome hair and eyes, and his complexion is bronzed
by the ocean winds
and eastern suns.
He says it seems to him like a fairy tale that I am

My cousin has come

the same little dumpling of a cousin he used to toss in the air
when he was last at home. He is much grieved to find that you are all gone, and is planning a hunting expedition, whose objective point
shall be your far-away settlement.

The neighbors
all congregated
around our kitchen fire to hear his wonderful stories
and adventures
which he was relating all day long and far into the night and for all that he has travelled almost over the whole world he is as happy as a boy to be at home on the dear old Nantucket plantation again. We are all as happy as we can be with our divided hearts, and all have frequent thought and wish

for our wanderers

while grandfather
remembers you each morning and evening at the Throne of Grace

My cousin has brought a great many curiosities and presents for us all.
One is a creamy shawl
for me, woven and embroidered with beautiful flowers. Another

Grandfather remembers you

is a gown of foamy Canton crape as white as snow, and they are so pretty I am sure I shall never dare to wear them. Grandma says they shall be kept
for my wedding.
Aunt Esther says
it is not seemly for such thoughts to be put into a maiden's head, but Aunt Content gave the other day a whole piece of linen from the Fall bleach, to be kept, she said, for a day of need.

At all events
my finery is packed away in guns and spices

in a foreign box, and is not likely to turn any silly maiden's head at present.

Cousin has returned to Boston and yesterday

"The same little dumpling of a cousin" he sent by a trusty messenger another sea chest. It is a large box of tea the first that was ever seen on the island, real Chinese, which Nat himself procured in China. It is of a green color, with little shriveled lea

yes, and when eaten dry has a pleasant spicy taste. Perhaps when I send this letter to you I can enclose some that you may see what it is like. He also sent a letter saying that when he returns to Nantucket the owner of the ship

in which he voyaged Captain Morris, will come with him from Boston to pay us a visit

We are again making master
preparation for visit ors; and if you will believe it, the great parlour which has not been used since

Aunt Mehitable's
wedding, is to be opened. The floor
has been newly waxed and polished, and we have spread down here and there beautiful mats which cousin Nat brought, with many curious and handsome things which are hung

on the walls and spread on the table and mantle-
piece; and the huge fire of logs the sharp weather now
renders needful in the chimney, sends out such a glow that you can have no conception how finely the room appears. I was admiring it this morning, when Aunt Esther rebuked

me gravely, saying,
"The bright things
of the world are
of short duration;
but dear grandma
said, with a smile,
that it was natural and right for the

It is natural and right for the young to admire beauty.

young to admire
beauty, at which Aunt Esther seemed much displeased. Sometimes I think she does not like me because I am
young, but that cannot be. Yet I cannot quite understand how, being my own
sweet mother's sister, she can be so unlike her

We

have just had tidings that Cousin Nat and his friend Captain Morris intend to arrive here on the 31st of December.

Uncle Nathaniel says he will have a tea-party and invite Lieutenant Macey's family, and

uncle Edward Star
buck's family, and a few others to meet our guests, and to
"sit the old year out and the new year in".
We cooked a beautiful dinner, and our guests all came.

I wore my new blue gown with some lace grandma gave me in the neck, and my own dear mother's necklace. I tied back my curls that cousin Nat will not allow me to braid, with a blue ribbon which he bought in London. Aunt Esther said men dislike to see girls look so brave but grandpa kissed

me and called me
"a bonnie bluebell."

Aunt Content
has been much pestered in her mind because she knew not how to serve the tea or cook it, and after our neighbors were assembled she confided to them her perplexity. They all gathered around the chest, smelling and tasting the fragrant herb. Mrs. Macey said she had heard it ought to be well cooked to be palatable; and

Edward Starbuck
said a lady in Boston who had drunk tea told him
it needed a good
quantity of steeping
which was the reason it was so expensive, so Aunt Content hung the bright five-gallon bellmetal kettle on the crane and, putting a two-quart bowl full of tea in it with plenty of water, swung it over the fire, and Aunt Esther stayed in the kitchen to keep it boiling.

While I was laying the table I heard Lydia Ann Macey say, "I

Aunt Content put a two quart bowl full of tea in it with plenty of water have heard that when tea is drunk

it gives a brilliancy to the eyes and a youthful freshness
to the complexion.
I am afraid thy sister-in-law failed to put in enough of the leaves.”

So Aunt
Esther
put in another bowl full. When
the tea had boiled
an hour my cousin and Captain Morris arrived.

Uhen the tea
which had boiled down to about a gallon, was poured into grandma's great silver tankard and carried to the table and each guest

was provided with one of her silver porringers; also with cream and lumps of sugar.

The Captain
talked to me before dinner and I told him before I knew I was getting confidential how you were all off in the wilds. He said enterprise was what the new country needed, and that it was not best

to have Nantucket peopled entirely
with Starbucks.
That I was one of the old stock
it was plain to be seen, he said, if my name was Wentworth; and then he looked pleasantly around the circle of the Starbucks. I suppose I do not resemble them at all. Law Aunt Esther looking at me so sharply that I remembered she had often told me it was not seemly to talk with men; so presently I became discreetly silent. But when

She had often told me it was not seemly to talk with men, so I became discreetly silent dinner was announced the captain took me out and made me

sit by him.

After grandpa had asked a blessing on the food, Aunt Content
said to her son and his friend, "I have made a dish of tea
for you, but am fear ful it is not rightly made, and would like to have your opinion;

whereupon my cousin and the captain
looked and sniffed
at the tea, and my cousin made answer:
“As my loved mother
desires my opinion I must needs tell her that a spoonful of this beverage, which she hath with such hospitable intent prepared for us would go nigh to kill anyone at this table." And the captain said laughingly, that my aunt could keep the decoction to dye the woolens. He further said he would in-strict us how to draw the tea, and this young lady," he said, turning to me, "shall make the first dish of tea ever made on Nantucket."

So the tea was made under his direction and poured into the
tankard Aunt Content had got ready,
and the captain

We had a wholesome dinner and enjoyable withal carried it to the table for me and helped to pour it into the porringers for the guests. He was so kind also as to say it was the best dish of tea he had ever tasted.

We had a wholesome dinner and enjoyable withal.

Cousin Nat told stories and sang songs in which Capt. Morris joined him and then the happy new year's greetings took the place of the good-byes when our neighbors left for their homes.

My cousin's friend still stays for the shooting, and there is not much spinning and weaving done

for it takes so much time for the cooking and the eating and the visiting. He is very agreeable and calls grandfather
"the Miles Standish of Nantucket." I heard him tell

Uncle Nathaniel
that we had good blood, and ever since he became acquainted with cousin Nat
he had conceived
a great admiration for the Nathaniel Starbucks; and
he said something about a wife. Perhaps he remains

Perhaps he remains here on Aunt Esther's account

here on Aunt Esther's account; but, dear
me, she is so prim, (I write with all respect, dear mother) and he is such a jovial gentleman, I do not understand how such a wedding
could be harmonious.
If he has a regard for her it must be on account of the Starbuck blood.

Oh, my mother,
how can I tell you! It is not for love of Aunt Esther that Captain Morris remains, but for your own little daughter;
and all the Starbuck's saving Aunt Esther—who declares I ought

Aunt Esther declares I ought to be to be put back into ven their consent that I shall be married and sail away with my husband in his ship to foreign ports, to see for myself all the wonders of which I have heard so much of late. But I will not give my consent until I first have that of my father and mother; so there is a company being made up to go with cousin Nat and the Captain through the snows to your far-away home.

And so, after all, it will be this new friend of whom I have written so much who will take this long letter to you

I am sure dear mother that you who know my heart so well will not think it unseemly for me (to pray) that the Lord will guide your heart and that of my father to feel kindly towards this gentleman; for, indeed he is of good repute and is so kind as to be very fond of me; and (if) I feel that I have your consent, and that of my honoured father, to gether with your blessing, I shall be very happy, and take an honest pride in being his honoured wife

The Captain
declares, laughingly, that I am sending him on a quest like a Knight of

For, indeed, he is of good repute, and is so kind as to be very fond of me old to prove his love.

I cannot help thinking it strange his wanting to marry me, and when I said
so one day, he replied gravely, that it was all
tea, which got into his head. And, indeed it may be so, for I was flighty, and

hardly shut my eyes to sleep at all the night after partaking of it; and then my
dear grandmother
says she would not answer for the consequences of what she might be led to do were she to make use of it every day 🍓 🍓

I send you, with other articles,
some of this famous tea, and a bit of the white crape that I shall, if so it seemeth best in the judgment of my honoured father and dear mother,
wear as a wedding gown.

The household
all join me in sending loving greet ing to you all, (and) I remain, now and ever,

Your loving and
dutiful daughter,
Ruth Starbuck
Wentworth

o on some day in that midwinter
of 1745 —
old tenors-Captain Morris and cousin Nat crossed the bar at high-tide,
sailed up the bay
singing sea-songs
no doubt a low and aloft, struck the woods at Woods - Hole, and went tramping through the snow Portsmouth way perhaps, after the Wentworths in the wilderness, came back duly with a blessing, and then the great parlour

would shine again
in the great log fire, and all the Starbuck

 he great parlor would shine again faces would grow radiant, save that of poor Aunt Esther, who had a secret of her own, perhaps, Ruth came near guessing touching the jovial gentleman who bore the maid away from her sweet wild island home. ♣
